WHOLE NO. 862.

TERRE-HAUTE, INDIANA, OCTOBER 13, 1858.

Be in Earnest.

He in earnest, Gut who formed thee, And with might and honor armed theely Noter designed that thou stoulds't squander Life in venity, or wander Childlike, after bursting bubbles. Made to buffet stormy troubles-Mad : to breast the whelming billow-Made to rest on sleepless pillow-Made to buttle ills the sternest-

Do in entwest. No advance can be made in art, or science except by men of earnest, devout, and rever ent spirit. No trifler can penetrate those oc cult Laws, from which, as from perennial springs, the mighty torrents of events roll adown the grand declivities of Time. Since the world began, there has been but one New ton to trace, from the apple's fall, a Universal Law. It was the Nazarine who said, "ye have eyes and see not-and ears and hear not" In vain the circles of events are run, revealing, through all time, the same immutable moral laws -- History has not yet its Philosophy. In vain animal and vegetable, and earth, and air, and water, tableau themselves for philosophic man. He will not see. And when the brave pioneer of science, who keeps in advance of his age, cries out Eureka! to the
